On The Way: Truth and Beauty

Monday, August 5th is the feast of the Dedication of the Basilica of Saint Mary Major. The feast's traditional and more winsome title is Our Lady of the Snows. This comes from the story that on August 5th snow fell on Rome's Esquiline hill — an unusual happening at any time of year in Rome, much less in the dead of summer. Our Lady then appeared and indicated that a church was to be built on the site of snowfall. Thus the basilica's origins.

The more historical account is less endearing (perhaps even boring), but more compelling. In 431 the Council of Ephesus infallibly proclaimed the Blessed Virgin Mary the Mother of God. Theotokos in the original Greek; literally, the God-bearer. Of course, this was not a new doctrine. The bishops in Ephesus simply proclaimed definitively and infallibly what Christians had always believed: because Mary's Son is God, she is the Mother of God. They did so because Archbishop Nestorius, having an erroneous understanding Christ's divinity, had denied Mary that title. Thus to defend the divinity of her Son, the Council of Ephesus declared Mary the Mother of God.

That declaration produced a great flourishing of art honoring the Virgin Mary. One such work was the Basilica of Saint Mary Major, which Pope Sixtus III dedicated to our Lady in 432, in celebration of the decree of Ephesus.

The long and short of this dedication (and why it's on my mind) is this: an infallible theological decree prompted a great work of art. Or, put simply, truth and beauty intersect. Now, conventional wisdom holds that truth and beauty don't line up. Truth is seen as hard, cold, perhaps even intolerant. Beauty, on the other hand, is kind, gentle, free from constraints, etc.

But the history of the Catholic Church indicates something different: the unity of truth and beauty. The Church's patrimony of beauty (e.g. the Basilica of Saint Mary Major, Notre Dame Cathedral, Dante's Divine Comedy, Aquinas's hymns, Caravaggio's paintings, etc.) arose as an expression of Catholic truth. As diverse and varied as the works may be, they all flow from that one font of truth.

Which brings me to the beauty of our parish church. Saint James is deservedly known as one of the prettiest churches in our area. But this beauty is more than just aesthetic. It comes from the truths of the Catholic faith. Our church's design, images, statues, etc. all flow from and give expression to the Church's faith. The reverse is true as well: beauty leads us to truth. Few people are drawn to theological decrees. But everyone is drawn to beauty, where they can also encounter the truth.

Finally, this unity of truth and beauty has implications for the Christian life. To live the truth of Christ means to live a beautiful human life. It means to live in such a way that people are drawn to the beauty of our lives and so encounter Him Who is truth itself.

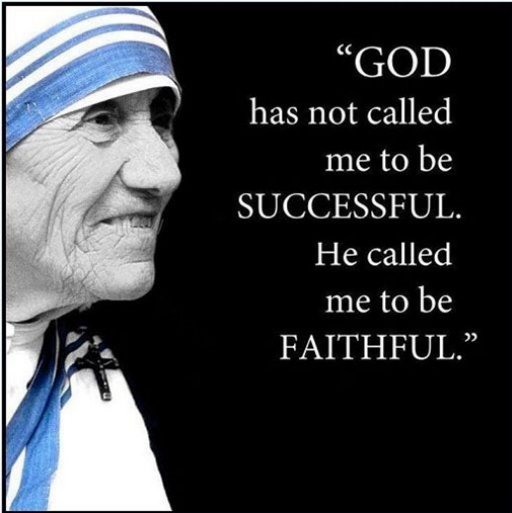

- Fr. Scalia

Stewardship

“Take care to guard against all greed, for though one may be rich, one’s life does not consist of possessions.”

Luke 12:15

The Gospel message today is contrary to our modern culture, where advertising continually tries to convince us that our value lies in the things we possess. Jesus showed us that our true value lies in the way we live our lives. He challenges us not to hoard material possessions, but rather to live a grateful and generous lifestyle and become more “other-centered” and less “self-centered.”

On Vacation? Traveling for business?

Relax! Your stewardship of Saint James can continue while you’re away. And when you return! Faith Direct has you covered.

Easy. Secure. Convenient.

Celebrating Vocations

On Thursday, July 25, the Feast of St. James, Allison Gliot, daughter of Deacon Ed and Mrs. Jean Gliot, became Sister Allison Gliot as she completed her period of Postulancy with the Daughters of St. Paul and entered the Order’s Novitiate. Sister Allison’s Novitiate period will last two years, after which she will make her first profession of vows and continue her progress toward making her final vows. To learn more about the Daughters of St. Paul and their unique mission, visit <http://bit.ly/2K71DJm>.

Please pray for Sister Allison, and for those in formation to be God's servants on Earth. May they progress in their studies, learn to be humble and obedient servants of Christ, and remain strong of faith and holiness. Pray as well for all those (especially our youth) discerning a call to religious life, that they may have the courage to answer the Holy Spirit's beckoning, providing a new generation of Gospel witnesses.
