On The Way

Serious business

We are quickly heading into the last weeks of summer. Soon our vacations will end and the regular work/school cycle will begin. Nevertheless, even with just a few weeks left, it's worth reflecting a little bit on the serious business of...leisure.

Of course, we don't think of leisure as serious. We typically consider it unimportant, requiring nothing more than not-working. So we lapse into idleness, loafing, or (worst of all) "vegging out." That kind of false leisure betrays our dignity. The human person does rest the way an animal does. A horse, for example, rests simply in order to eat and recuperate for more toil. The human person rests for a higher purpose.

We rest from work so that we can turn our minds and attention to more important things: to God, family, community, etc. Work often distracts us from these things. Just the exhaustion from work cuts into our ability to give them attention. Rest gives us the opportunity to attend better to those things that make us human. Hence the word recreation: we pause from our work so that we can be restored physically, mentally, and spiritually; we recreate so that we can be re-created.

This is not to disparage the original blessing of work (cf. Gen 2:15). It is, rather, to point us to the greater good: the eternal rest of heaven. That term might be familiar to us only from the traditional Catholic prayer for the deceased: Eternal rest grant unto them, O Lord... But the prayer and the phrase express what should be in every Christian mind: that we are created to rest in God. Indeed, we find rest only in Him.

An indication of rest's seriousness is that God commanded it: Remember the sabbath day, to keep it holy. Six days you shall labor, and do all your work; but the seventh day is a sabbath to the Lord your God; in it you shall not do any work (Ex 20:8-10). God commands the sabbath rest so that we will not be dominated and ground down by work. Sunday is to be a day that detaches us from the business of this world so that we can be better attached to God.

So what does this mean for the summer? Simply that we should seek that kind of leisure and rest that truly restores us. We should avoid those things that keep us racing around, exhausting ourselves with activities, doing more and more. Not every moment needs to be scheduled. We should leave time for just being with another. Families should avoid the electronics that enable them to be with one another but not present to one another. (So much better to use the old board games or card games that require personal interaction not mediated by a screen!)

May the Lord bless the remaining summer days with restful, restorative time for you and your families.

~Fr. Scalia

Stewardship

“Ask and you will receive; seek and you will find; knock and the door will be opened to you.” Luke 11:9

Jesus assures us that if we ask, God will take care of what we need. It's easy, however, to confuse what we really need with what we simply want. Sometimes we want things to make us happy; or we want situations to go a certain way. When we truly think about it, our needs are not so vast. Yet, our wants can encroach upon those and make us feel that we are lacking. Truly our greatest need is a trusting relationship with Christ. Open your hearts to this and you will find that you are getting what you need. As the song says, “You can't always get what you want, but if you try sometimes you just might find, you get what you need.”

Por lo tanto, la Sociedad no está bien equipada para responder a estas mayores demandas de sus servicios. ¡La SVdP necesita tu ayuda...! Estamos buscando a aquellos que son bilingües y le recomendamos que se comunique con su Conferencia SVdP más cercana para obtener más información.
