On The Way

Holiness: The Morning Offering

The famous phrase Carpe diem — Seize the day! — was coined by the Roman poet Horace. It is commonly understood in epicurean terms: time is short, so use it to have as much pleasure as possible. Whatever Horace actually meant, perhaps we can hijack the phrase for purposes of Christian holiness. Because we should seize the day — by making a good morning offering.

Today's secular gurus of time management insist that the first hours of the day are crucial. Make Your Bed, by US Navy Admiral William McRaven, draws its title from this point: the first acts of the day are determinative.

Nothing new under the sun. The Church's great spiritual writers have always spoken of the first moments of the day as the most important, as the time when battles in the interior life are won or lost. The first spiritual battle of the day is to conquer our desire to remain in bed. If we win that one, then we stand a better chance of resisting temptations later in the day.

Soon-to-be-Saint John Henry Newman writes, If you ask me what you are to do in order to be perfect, I say, first — Do not lie in bed beyond the due time of rising; give your first thoughts to God. But we need look no further than our Lord's own example: Rising very early before dawn, he left and went off to a deserted place, where he prayed (Mk 1:35). For our Lord, the new day meant the opportunity to do His Father's work.

So it is for us: we should offer our first waking thoughts and words to the Lord. Each day is a gift given to us so that we can renew our efforts to turn from sin, cultivate virtue, and grow in grace. The best way to thank God for that gift is to offer it to Him.

There is no set way of making the morning offering. But a tried and true practice is to get out of bed (no hitting the snooze button!), kneel on the floor, and say a simple prayer:

O my God, in union with the Immaculate Heart of Mary, I offer Thee the Precious Blood of Jesus from all the altars throughout the world, joining with it the offering of my every thought, word and action of this day. O my Jesus, I desire today to gain every indulgence and merit I can and I offer them, together with myself, to Mary Immaculate, that she may best apply them to the interests of Thy most Sacred Heart.

There is another, very practical, reason for the morning offering: it is a way of telling God that, whatever might happen throughout the day... however distracted we may become... however forgetful of Him... we want the day to be for Him and His glory. And there's no better use of our time than that.

- Fr. Scalia

Second Collection: Second Collection To Benefit PREP

These teachers also deepen their students' knowledge of the church, while fostering in them a zeal to carry out Christ's mission in their personal lives. Thank you for supporting them as they bring the Good News to the next generation!
